To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to recommend Ros Yum and his company Sojourn Korea for any work for which they may be considered.

For the past four years Ros has assisted me with personal living arrangements in Korea. During this time, he has been invaluable to me. He has made my stay here almost effortless. His work is outstanding, always timely and he has assisted me in many ways far above and beyond what he has been compensated for. He is a true professional and is absolutely reliable. I have no hesitation giving him my very highest recommendation.

Please feel free to contact me with questions or inquiries.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern:

I confirm that I have worked with Rosh Yum, Sojourn Korea Managing Director, for slightly less than one year. He supported my relocation from the United States to South Korea to work as a foreign expert for the KHNP APR 1400 project.

Rosh performs many relocation services, including process support for the work visa, arranging bank service, apartment search and lease support, and telephone service support. Rosh supports all of my requests. Rosh is always completely professional, completely reliable, and remarkably knowledgeable. I found that Rosh often knows the resolution to problems I have not anticipated, and he has prevented difficulty more than once.

Without help from Rosh Yum I would have been unable to focus on the KHNP work as quickly. My early productivity and work focus is due in large part to Rosh eliminating the relocation distractions. Relocation does not proceed as smoothly for people who do not enlist his service. He greatly reduces the inconvenience and expense from international work.

To Whom It May Concern:

I would like to offer the strongest recommendation for Ros Yum and his company Sojourn Korea. Ros is extremely customer oriented and is always willing to help – and since I have relocated to South Korea I have needed a lot of it. Most of the things he has helped me with I could have not done on my own – things like getting a place to live, my visa, driver's license, cable TV, a leased vehicle, and the list goes on and on. These are very important things, at least to me, when you are relocating in a foreign country. Ros is always there when needed - and this is no exaggeration. One of the things I am most impressed with is Ros's attention to detail. I merely mention some kind of need and Ros does not forget – even after I forget!

I cannot say enough good things about Ros and everyone I know shares my opinion. I will go as far as to say it is not opinion – it is fact. Please feel free to contact me if you need any clarification or further details.

When I first met Rosh Yum

I arrived in South Korea on 8/29/15 after given the opportunity to assist in the training of Korean Operators at the KHNP Global Training Center. Ros had contacted me in the US prior to my arrival to inform me that he had secured a hotel room and that he was picking me up at the airport. I responded that I did not want to be a burden, that he could go about his business and just tell me how to get to the hotel.

Ros clearly understood that I would need help, met me at the airport, transported me to the hotel and made sure that I was taken care of by the hotel staff. At this time, I had been up for over 24 hours and he was a welcome sight. As a foreigner, this was a great relief that someone was assisting me in arriving into a new country for the first time. Ros made sure that I was comfortable on the first night and that was just the beginning.

It was then that I knew I could trust him.

As the days followed, Ros was instrumental in assisting me in the following ways:

On my first day at work, Ros picked me up at KHNP and drove me to the Immigration center to apply for my Alien Registration Card, which would take 2 weeks to actually get. He understood the importance of applying for the card quickly, which I did not. As we entered the center it was extremely crowded and I thought this would be a long wait. Ros seemed to own the room. He immediately sought out the immigration official who could get my situation addressed and interpreted everything that needed to be straightened out, which included extending my Visa for an additional 11 months while in country. I can't imagine trying to do that on my own.

Following my visit to the Immigration center, he brought me to the Citadine Hotel for a possible living arrangement, as it had just opened a couple of weeks earlier. I immediately felt that this would meet my needs, as the host was very kind in showing us the various living quarters. While there he negotiated a reduced monthly rate for me since I would be a long term guest as well as a free breakfast meal every day for a year. The hotel staff has treated me very well here and have accommodated my wishes for long term stay.

When the initial 2 weeks had passed Ros picked me up at work, handed me my registration card and then we were on our way to open up a Korean bank account. Following that he took me to acquire a Korean Cell phone with contract. Once again, I did not understand the importance of such items, but Ros did, and the phone has turned out to be a link to the Korean world in many ways that I could not have comprehended.

Shortly after opening my Korean bank account, I had trouble logging in because of my laptop not working properly, which I did not understand at the time. I asked Ros to return to the bank with me, which he gladly did and my laptop died before my eyes. Ros volunteered to ship my laptop to a service center in Seoul, Korea which I eventually ended up doing but once again his character stood out to resolve issues and help in any way that he could.

When I first landed here, I had brought US dollars with me but had no luck in exchanging the dollars for Korean Won. I had been turned down at a bank on a couple of occasions and again turned to Ros. He said he could take care of it. He met me early one morning (7AM) as I was headed off to work and took my cash to exchange for me. When I returned from work he provided me the cash with a receipt. He had succeeded where I had failed and this was important because I had not received my first paycheck from work yet, this was all I had. Ros had come through for me once again.

After arriving in South Korea, I was actually in the process of retiring from an American company that I had worked for 30 years. As such, paperwork had to be mailed to me from the US, signed by me, and then quickly returned by express mail. Since I was working, Ros volunteered to handle the mailing of my signed documents and he promptly made it happen the next day after arrival. This was especially significant to me and I thank him for that. He is a man of unquestionable integrity.

3 weeks after being here, Ros again picked me up at work to obtain my Korean driver's license. When we arrived, it was filled with a large number of people and I thought that this is more like the Motor Vehicle Division that I'm used to in the US. Ros immediately got me through the process in very little time, again interpreting everything for me. It was painless. Now that I was armed with a driver's license the next step was getting a rental car. Once again, painless. Ros had it delivered to my hotel parking lot and the financing of the vehicle was all done electronically through my new Korean cell phone. He also acquired the HiPass device and card for the toll road and even put 10,000 KRW on it to get me started before I even drove it.

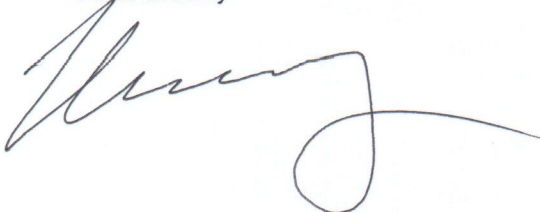

Priceless.

Ros is an incredibly valuable individual who is kind, friendly, honest, and trustworthy. He takes care of everything that needs to be taken care of. As mentioned earlier, I can't imagine attending to these items on my own. Without Ros, I would probably be still looking for a place to live. The man works magic.

I value his friendship and hope to continue doing business with him in the future.

Sincerely,

Miles Bradley
